Tuesday
Keep It Simple
Dominick Pérez

\[ \text{#60} \]

\[ \text{#60} \]

\[ \text{#60} \]

\[ \text{#60} \]

\[ \text{#60} \]

\[ \text{#60} \]

\[ \text{#60} \]

\[ \text{#60} \]

©2012
Thursday
Viking Drone

Dominick Pérez

\( \textit{\textcopyright} 2012 \)
Friday
Borrow Some Words

Voice

\[\text{\textit{Nature's first green is gold,} \quad \text{Her hardest hue to hold.}}\]

\[\text{\textit{Her early leaf's a flower;} \quad \text{But only so an hour.} \quad \text{Then}}\]

\[\text{\textit{leaf subsides to leaf.} \quad \text{So Eden sank to grief,} \quad \text{So}}\]

\[\text{\textit{dawn turns to day.} \quad \text{Nothing gold can stay.}}\]
Saturday
Something Completely Different  Dominick Pérez

Have a friend punch you in the gut with considerable force. The friend must follow through with the punch, rather than just hit and immediately retract. You should not tense your stomach muscles to brace for the blow. You must make sure the friend's fist does not meet any resistance when striking you. After the blow has been dealt, proceed to wallow in agony. The agony must not be exaggerated or made-up; it must be real. The piece is done when you have regained your composure, but it may be repeated for effect.